Langford questions board's actions

SG-UNO may sue regents

By Larry Tarkington

Student Government (SG-UNO) is considering suing the NU Board of Regents on the grounds that the board is using its authority "capriciously" on a variety of issues. UNO Student President/Regent Florene Langford said the regents are interpreting the state constitution incorrectly.

"You see, the board is saying that the office of student president/regent is one position and that according to the constitution, I can receive no compensation for my duties as per what was written. The fact is I am doing two jobs. I have my regental duties, but I also have my duties as student president. They are definitely separated."

What the board is basing their action on is the section of the constitution which states "No member of the Board of Regents will receive any compensation for their duties, only remuneration for expenses incurred."

Regents receive some monies from the state for travel and other expenses. Previous to this term, Langford was paid for her position as student regent.

"When I was receiving a salary," Langford said, "it was $750 a year, and now I'm getting nothing, which means that the board is using my position as a regent to wipe out my salary as president. But the fact is when you combine all three of the student regents' salaries together they don't even amount to $3,000."

The (NU) Medical Center regent gets $950, and Lincoln's (UNL) gets only $1,250. But the other board members work in other capacities as well. There are attorney and doctors on the Board of Regents.

"When these people transcended" to the height of being a regent they sure didn't give up their salaries for the job," said Langford.

When asked, if initiated, what the grounds for the suit would be, Langford said "Number one, that the Board of Regents is using their power capriciously with their interpretation of the state constitution, and most importantly, that the Board of Regents is not the body to interpret any state law. They are not judges — that is the court's prerogative."

Langford also said SG-UNO obtained a legal opinion about the efficacy of suing. "We contacted an attorney to see what he thought of our chances and he said that it looked like 99-1 in our favor in court."

But SG-UNO has run into financial difficulties over the suit. "We went ahead and contracted with the attorney and entered in a joint class action suit with Lincoln," said Langford. "So legal expenses were split. However, when we attempted to issue a check to the attorney for services rendered, it (the check) was stopped by the board."

"It was then that Student Government received Executive Order No. 10 from (Vice Chancellor) Richard Hoover, and what this memorandum stated was that any employee of the university could not seek legal aid, or go into litigation, without approval of the university counsel, who is Richard Wood," continued Langford.

"Now the problem with the executive memorandum is this: we are not employees of the university, we don't get paid by the university, and we get no benefits from the university — so how can this apply to us? But the fact remains that the check was stopped. So now we are attempting to sell calendars to pay off the legal debt," she added.

SG-UNO is attempting to bring the issue to light in a "controversial speakers" forum, Langford said.

"What we originally planned to do was use the money in our controversial speaker fund to pay the attorney. But the administration said that in order for us to remove the money out of the account we have to have their approval, and to get that we have to use it for a controversial speaker," she said.

Langford said the administration's position on controversial speakers is that both sides of an issue must be presented.

"I talked to Richard Wood last semester about speaking on the regents' behalf, on why he felt the board was justified in prohibiting the student president from receiving compensation. At that time, he said yes," said Langford.

"I then called him to confirm a date and told him that we would have another opinion presented which would be our (SG-UNO) position. He then refused to speak," she said.

Two Hoagland bills ask for 'accountability'

By Bernie L. Williamson

Improved accountability of the NU Board of Regents is the goal of two bills introduced in the state legislature by Sen. Peter Hoagland of Omaha.

Hoagland introduced two bills on Jan. 8, which call for a change in the present structure of the Board of Regents. Legislative bill (LB) 735 calls for an amendment to the Nebraska Constitution to allow the governor the power to appoint three additional regents. LB 736 specifies that those regents would come from the state's three congressional districts and serve six-year terms of office.

The bills, if approved, would require voter approval in November.

"What we have is a mini-branch of government with basically no accountability to anyone," said Hoagland of the board.

Current law provides for the election of six to eight regents by district.

"At present, the only power the legislature has over the board is to cut funds," he said. "And the governor can only make recommendations," concerning the regents, Hoagland added.

He referred to a 1980 report by the Governor's

Task Force for Government Improvement, which concluded that "constitutional offices are quite appropriate to Nebraska's needs and that the direct election of these officials provides important safeguards." However, the report stated that "the organization and management of higher education in Nebraska deserves serious study..."

Hoagland said his bills are the answer to the task force's reservations about the NU system. He added the bills would tie the regents, governor, and legislature more closely together.

The board voted 7-1 at its Jan. 16 meeting to oppose the bills. Regent Robert Simmons of Scottsbluff cast the dissenting vote.

Simmons said his vote doesn't indicate agreement or disagreement with the bills. "What we believe as individuals is one thing. It is inappropriate for the board, as a board, to express an opinion," on the bills, Simmons said.

He said he didn't think the appointees would make much difference.

Regent Kermit Hansen of Omaha disagreed, saying "A combination of an elected and appointed board is not the best idea."

I don't think they mix."

He said the election process is not perfect, "but there is always the opportunity at election time to throw the rascals out."

He noted that the NU board is "one of only five in the whole United States" whose members are elected to their positions.

"Elected officials are just a little bit closer to the people," said Regent James Moylan of Omaha, "and more responsive to them than appointed officials."

According to Hoagland, however, "Regent elections are generally low-visibility elections. Name recognition, and not issues, is usually the main factor."

Under his bills Hoagland said the governor would "appoint board members who have had more experience in higher education and are therefore knowledgeable about the needs of the university and how it can best serve the community."

UNO Student President/Regent Florene Langford said appointees by the governor "would lend expertise to the board."

Senate vetoes YAF constitution

By Sally McMurphy

The Student Senate voted 15-13 to reject a constitution submitted by the Young Americans for Freedom (YAF) at last Thursday's senate meeting.

The senate referred the constitution to the rules committee for revision. Junior Class Sen. Jon Taute said the original constitution had "too many loopholes" and did not define exactly what YAF is.

One of the revisions suggested by the rules committee is to require the inclusion of a clause in the group's constitution which outlines the political orientation of YAF.

Speaking on behalf of YAF, Kenneth Spikes said that YAF is "not political, but a learning organization." He said he did not like the idea of YAF being labeled as a political group.

He added that YAF would not accept revision of its current constitution and that he would seek "legal action" against the senate for not accepting it.

In other action, the senate reviewed a resolution calling for an amendment to the requirements for organization constitutions.

The resolution, introduced by Arts and Sciences Sen. Gregory Mertz, would require all new and existing student organizations to re-certify their constitution and officers (continued on page 3)

Bus bill proposal may give students fare discount

By Bernie L. Williamson
Wouldn't you really rather ride the bus? State Sen. Peter Hoagland of Omaha said the bus could be the solution to UNO's parking problems.

Hoagland introduced LB 957 in the legislature Jan. 19, a bill which proposes a $30,000 subsidy for Metro Area Transit (MAT) to provide reduced fares for UNO students. The bill includes the appropriation of $20,000 for a one-year study of UNO land use, in addition to prohibiting further westward expansion until June 1983.

Hoagland said "because of state level funding problems" money for UNO land acquisition and parking facilities is not going to be available for at least two years. Hoagland added that UNO should "take advantage of that two-year period to look for a cheaper solution to the problem."

"The MAT subsidy is an experiment," said Hoagland. He said that he "realizes a lot of students don't have the time to take the bus, but if parking pressures could be decreased by 300 cars, it might be enough to eliminate the need for a parking garage." He added: "If it works, the savings would be enormous."

The subsidy would amount to a 40 percent discount on the adult fare. That would make the cost of a ride about 33 cents.

The discount would apply to transportation to and from UNO, and would be in effect from July 1 through June 30, 1983.

Hoagland's bill also proposes the formation of a five-member commission.

The commission would be composed of two UNO representatives to be appointed by Chancellor Del Weber, two representatives from the adjacent neighborhoods to be appointed by Hoagland, and Hoagland.

The commission would be responsible for hiring an architectural or engineering firm to conduct a study as to whether UNO's needs can be accommodated on presently-owned land. The commission would also study the effectiveness of the reduced MAT fares. The commission would then report its findings to the legislature by June 1983.

Frank Rowley, speaker of the Student Senate, said he "would rather see a more equitable distribution of interests."

He added that he sees four interests in the issue: UNO's, nearby residents', the city's, and the students'. "This plan represents only two factions (Weber's and Hoagland's)," he said.

Rowley added that he would "rather see the funds used to expedite the proposed lab sciences building."

UNO Student President/Regent Florene Langford said that the suggestion of another UNO parking study would be "an excessive expenditure."

"It's obvious that we don't have enough available parking space," she said. "He (Hoagland) could ask any student and the answer would be 'no,'" she said.

"The university has already conducted several studies," said Langford. "Studies have been done for 20 years."

"He should be lauded for trying to help, but this is not a feasible solution," added Langford.

Legislation may change regent structure

(continued from page 1) is going to look for someone with a background in educational affairs," said Langford. "A lot of times what you find is that these people (present members of the board) really don't know anything about education," she added. "If it would make it (the board) more of an advocate of education, they should all be appointed," said Langford. UNL Student President/Regent Rick Mockler said he had mixed feelings about the bills but that "the overall principle is good." "There have been some disagreements on the board, and some questionable decisions. I'm not sure how much of that is actually due to the selection process," said Mockler. He said he shares Hoagland's concern that the legislature has little say in how the regents use state monies. "The legislature hasn't any direct liaison or trust-tee sitting on the board," said Mockler. "If they did, it might promote more direct communication between the legislature and the university." The bills are currently being reviewed by the Constitutional Revisions and Re-creation Committee. Hoagland said public hearings on the bills should begin within two weeks. Five of the eight committee members must approve the bills in order for them to be sent to the floor of the legislature.

Constitution rejected

The senate passed the resolution by a vote of 11-5-1 and will notify all organizations shortly.

Arts and Sciences Sen. Eric Whitner then submitted a resolution which called for the prosecution of a UNO student who lied to police about a rape which she alleged occurred in Elmwood Park.

The woman had told police that she was raped by three black men in Elmwood Park, but later confessed that she was actually raped by white men in a North Omaha residence.

Whitner's resolution asks that the woman be prosecuted for lying to police and that the approved resolution to that effect be submitted for publication to the Public

Pulse section of the Omaha World Herald.

Fine Arts Sen. Terri Barna-Pitzl objected to the resolution. "I think the girl has been through enough. She's had a traumatic experience and prosecuting her is a little harsh," she said.

Student President/Regent Florene Langford said, "That's too bad. She should have thought of that before she lied. The fact is, she lied and made it sound like there's a black rapist behind every tree in the park."

The senate accepted a revision of the proposal, which included asking the World-Herald for a "retraction" of the story, and passed the resolution.

The Senate questioned the legality of a proposed closed session meeting between Mayor Boyle and campus administrators.

Research Assistance: plagiarism?

By Rick Kalkowski

The words "research paper" usually make one think of long hours spent in the library or behind a typewriter. Eliminating those long library hours and typing is the business of a Los Angeles-based company called Research Assistance. And they do it by selling pre-written research papers.

The Research Assistance catalog costs $1 and lists more than 10,000 papers on a wide range of topics.

Papers listed in the catalog cost $4 per page, with $69 the highest price of any one paper. For $4 a page, a student can receive a photo copy of a research paper written by one of the company's "professional writers," complete with footnotes and bibliography.

If a student is unable to find a paper in the catalog that suits his needs, Research Assistance will write one to his specifications, for a higher price.

This "custom research" service costs $9 to $10 per page with a minimum order of six pages. Custom papers take about two weeks to complete. Rush orders cost an extra dollar per page and are ready to be mailed in three to 12 days, depending on the difficulty of the paper.

According to Rosalie Meiches, Gateway business manager, Research Assistance has advertised in the Gateway since 1973.

In September 1980, the ads prompted a letter to the UNO Publications Committee signed by several faculty members of the sociology department. The signers asked the Gateway to refrain from publishing the ads because they said they encouraged cheating.

The ads were allowed to continue because they did not violate the Gateway's advertising policy.

MaryAnn Lamanna, associate professor of sociology and a signer of the letter, said plagiarized papers are a problem in her classes. In past semesters, Lamanna has turned back as many as six such papers to students. She said she has never received a paper from Research Assistance in a class, but added that it would be hard to determine.

To combat the problem, Lamanna said she now assigns fewer papers. When papers are assigned, Lamanna said she tries to monitor students' progress with periodic conferences.

Gaylon Kuchel, a professor of criminal justice, said he suspects some of the papers he receives are plagiarized, but said it is hard to prove.

Kuchel said there have been "a couple of occasions" in which he has caught students with plagiarized work. In one case, a student handed the same paper to different instructors within the same department. As a result, the student failed both classes, he said.

According to Kuchel, students who buy research papers are cheating themselves of the learning experience the papers were meant to provide. He said companies that sell such papers are engaged in "nice business rackets" that fail to benefit students or faculty.

Research Assistance declined to comment, saying it does not grant interviews.

Verne's Views

By Verne McClurg
Director of UNO Campus Security

Help For Guests Available

Are you expecting a Guest Lecturer next week? Does your professional association include off campus individuals? Is a prospective employer going to visit your class to discuss job opportunities? If the answer to any of these questions is yes, you need to prepare your guest for parking on campus.

The Campus Security office will send your department a number of Temporary Visitor Permits upon request. You need only to fill-in the individual's name, the date he/she will be on campus, and mail the top copy to your guest in advance of class, meeting, etc., while returning the bottom copy to Campus Security.

Individuals with Visitor Parking Permits may park in any Faculty/Staff or Student Parking lot. Areas to avoid are: Reserved, Assigned, Handicapped, Carpool, sub-compact, and metered areas. Plan ahead and make your guest's visit a pleasant and rewarding experience.

Length v. Wheelbase

Sub-compact vehicles are those which are 180" X 70". Wheelbase dimensions are not a valid indicator of sub-compact size. Check your owner's manual for the length and width of your vehicle or call an automobile dealer. Campus Security does have a current list of vehicles which qualify for sub-compact parking. Please check your manual — don't guess.

Carpoolers Increasing

Please note the additional carpool signs at the North end of J Lot, located between the Performing Arts Bldg. and the UNO Library. Last year, for both semesters, we issued a total of 38 Carpool Permits. This year, thus far, we issued 32 Carpool Permits during the Fall Semester and 40 Carpool Permits this semester.

Since this area is recognized as a quasi-reserved parking lot, violators will receive a Violation Notice and may be towed, WITHOUT NOTICE.

Watch the signs, there are individual Carpool signs for each space. Towing costs are approximately $28.50 per vehicle. Save money and stay alert to new signs.

Mayor: 'closed meeting' clamps cuffs on press

Last Friday, a much-discussed meeting was scheduled with Mayor Boyle, Chancellor Weber, and all the other bigshots who would decide the fate of the UNO parking problem.

But UNO closed before the meeting ever had a chance to begin. That meeting promised to be very interesting. We were in our office waiting for an invitation, not only to know when the meeting was, but also to know who was in charge of the meeting.

The meeting was on campus, so University Relations ran the show, right? Wrong. It was to be in the chancellor's conference room, so Del was on top of things, right? Wrong again. Maybe the neighbors? Nope.

Who's left? Mayor Mike and his trusted companion, Barbara Wright. That's to whom the meeting belonged, Del told us that Mayor Mike is a nice guy who likes open meetings. We told our readers the same thing. Only we didn't know that Barbara Wright had decided otherwise.

Student Government leaders Florene Langford and Frank Rowley didn't get their invites either, so upon inquiring, they found out Barbara had been on vacation and the person she had left the invites with didn't send them out. (Hope it was a nice vacation.)

But Langford and Rowley were told they could be there. Wow — student involvement, isn't that keen? Langford also discovered that the meeting was to be closed and no press would be allowed. That's where we come in.

The Gateway not only has a responsibility to inform UNO students about the decisions being made which affect them, we also have a right to report such decisions. We will not shirk the responsibility, nor will we forfeit the right.

The Nebraska Open Meetings Law allows public officials to meet behind closed doors only when discussing intricacies of personnel matters such as collective bargaining, or the details of real estate purchases and litigation, or the deployment of security devices and personnel.

If anyone decided to keep the Gateway out of the parking powwow, perhaps discussion of the security aspect may well have been in order. To quote the law: "Public policy is public business and may not be conducted in secret."

We thank the Student Senate for voting unanimously to support the Gateway's right to cover the meeting.

It is unfortunate that some officials are so ashamed of their ideas that they want to hide behind a veil of secrecy.

Is Ronald Reagan really a racist?

von Hoffman

"I resent the implication that there is any bigotry in my nature. Don't anyone ever imply I lack integrity. I will not stand silent and let anyone imply that — in this or any other group." Ronald Reagan shouted some years ago to a meeting of the National Negro Republican Assembly. With that the future president slammed a fist into the palm of a hand and walked out of the hall.

A few minutes previously, a questioner from the floor had asked Mr. Reagan, "How are Negro Republicans going to encourage other Negroes to vote for you after your statement that you would not have voted for the civil rights bill?"

With the tax exemption on Jim Crow private schools, we are seeing another example of the "I can do anything I want, how dare you question my motives" approach. His nibs tells racially discriminatory schools they'll be getting a subsidy from now on and then, after hearing the horrified coast-to-coast gasps announces, "I am unalterably opposed to racial discrimination in any form."

Yeah, well prove it, Mac. The same statement also says, "My record and the record of the administration are clear on this point." Indeed they are, and they are both bad. In his first 12 months in office Ronald Reagan has compiled the worst record on race relations since Woodrow Wilson — an out-and-out, no pretense bigot who fired black clerical workers and re-segregated federal government offices after Theodore Roosevelt had integrated them.

The pattern is clear. The record he boasts of is one of opposition to school integration, failure to support extension of the Voting Rights Act, opposition to affirmative action in every area of life where black people have a vital interest, be it public housing, government employment or welfare. His administration's program, as it has worked out in fact, consists of cutting welfare and jobs at the same time. More than 12 percent of adult non-whites are out of work.

What are these people supposed to do? No jobs and no welfare. The money for the public schools is being cut and the white-only schools get a tax subsidy. The next thing we know Mr. Nice Guy, the Great Communicator, is going to be on the tube telling us "Look, you know my record. You know how I despise racial discrimination in any form. It hurts me to see it, so why don't the black people go back to Africa where I'm sure they'll be treated fair and square?"

In ordinary circumstances a president, like anyone else, is entitled to a presumption of good faith, to the presumption, to use his language, that there is no bigotry in his nature. But Ronald Reagan's behavior toward black Americans has been so hostile it has put him and his administration under suspicion. Acts given an innocent construction at the time no longer look so innocent.

There was the Republican fundraiser in Chicago which Mrs. Reagan greeted by saying how delighted she was to see "all those beautiful white faces" in the audience. Or the incident at the Republican National Convention when Benjamin Hooks, the NAACP's executive director, was, after considerable fuss and reluctance, given a chance to speak. Mrs. R. sat in the box doing giggle and girl talk with Mrs. Senator Elizabeth Taylor Warner while the hopelessly optimistic Hooks attempted to demonstrate to the ladies that many of America's 30 million black people truly do have some special problems which need addressing.

As it was fair game to speculate about Rosalyn Carter's influence over hubby and more importantly, hubby's official behavior, so we are allowed to wonder about Nancy Reagan. It has been written and whispered over and over again that Nancy's step-father, Dr. Loyal Davis, with whom the Reagans spent their honeymoon, did much to shape his son-in-law's thinking about society.

Read through the newspaper clips about Dr. Davis and one story is repeatedly told. This version was printed in the Washington Post:

"A local doctor who studied under Loyal Davis recalls him as 'one of the toughest, meanest, commiserating, narrow-minded, John Birchering, ultra-conservative hellions' he'd ever met. Which explains why medical students, after delivering babies in Chicago's black ghettos, would get back at Davis by convincing mothers to name their babies after him."

Maybe it didn't rub off on Ronnie, but as the sports writers say, the ball is in his court; it's up to him to disprove it, and not by another huffy-puffy, how-dare-you-impugn-my-integrity statement. It's impugned and so are you, Mr. Nice Guy.

Letters

Dear Editor:

I am a business major and have taken my share of accounting and economics classes in the College of Business Administration building.

I have a few gripes about CBA.

For one, this is a building where people use pencils for accounting and calculating purposes, yet have you ever tried to find a pencil sharpener in the building?

There's only one sharpener, on the second floor, and you can only use it when the accounting lab is open.

Next, who designed CBA, a freshman engineering major perhaps?

When class gets out in the morning and I have to walk into that overcrowded hall, I feel like I'm just one cow in a herd being fenced off.

I would hate to think of what might happen if there were a fire in this building. The halls are too narrow and cannot accommodate the masses.

Finally, after taking five classes in room 122 and freezing each winter in that room, I feel qualified to say the classroom needs heat.

This is my last semester. Do you think it's possible to get pencil sharpeners, heat, and some fire exits before I exit?

UNO student runs for MUD

A UNO student is up for election on May 11, three days after his graduation. Ray Simon, a senior majoring in economics, is a candidate for the Metropolitan Utilities District (MUD) board of directors.

Simon, 33, retired from MUD after 15 years of servicing more than 20,000 homes and businesses in the Omaha community as a technician regulating consumer gas usage. During this time, he said, his close contact with the public allowed him to observe problems within the MUD system.

Simon said this experience qualifies him to represent those he once serviced.

Modifying MUD rates is one of the items on Simon's agenda.

"We elect our representatives, yet we don't remain active in the decision-making process," said Simon. Active participation from the public would be an effective means of controlling rising costs, which especially affect the poor and the elderly, he added.

The hiring of an effective lobbyist in Washington, D.C., would be another effective means to retain government controls over the price of natural gas, said Simon.

As a former vice president of Local 1521 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW), and as a labor advisor to the United Way of the Midlands, Simon said the skills he acquired in those capacities will enable him to serve the public efficiently and effectively. "I will make a good representative," he said.

Simon

Simon is the older brother of Todd Simon, assistant professor of communication at UNO. He is also the son of Bernie Simon, president of the Omaha City Council.

Simon said he plans to attend law school in the future.

UNO leaves Chiefs cold

UNO beat the Morningside Chiefs 52-47 in snow-covered Sioux City, Iowa, Sunday but not without utilizing their spread offense to do it.

The game was ragged for most of the first half, with both teams committing a number of turnovers and shooting in the low 30 percent range.

The teams fought to a 25-25 tie at half time. Most of the Mavs' points came from the inside by Tony Cunningham and Terry Sodawasser, who had eight and six points, respectively.

In the second half, things didn't change much as both teams still couldn't seem to break it open. But with 18 minutes left, UNO Coach Bob Hanson moved his team into a spread offense known as the three game.

From that point, the Mavericks controlled the tempo of the game, scoring on a number of easy inside shots by Rickey Suggs, Henry Riedel, and Sodawasser, and expanded their lead to as many as 10 points in the remaining minutes of play.

Balanced scoring again proved to be the key for UNO. Sodawasser led the Mavs with 13 points. Riedel added 12, Thompson 9, Cunningham eight, and Suggs seven.

The Chiefs' scoring was led by guard Brad Mozer's 17 points, and back court partner Steve Brandsma's 13.

UNO senior Rick Keel, who has been shooting a red-hot 65 percent in the last seven games (34 of 52), sat the game out with a sprained ankle.

The win brings UNO's record to 14-3, (4-1 in NCC play) while dropping the Chiefs to 7-10 and 0-5 in league play.

The win also moves Hanson within four games of 200 career victories. Hanson is in his 13th year with the Mavericks.

The Mavericks played South Dakota Monday night and will be in Greeley, Colo., tonight playing against Northern Colorado.

In upcoming UNO home games "spirit" contests are planned to boost attendance. To qualify for the prize of a keg of beer, a spirit group must have at least 20 persons, and must register at least 15 minutes before the game at the scorer's table. The group must name its sponsor and its location in the stands.

The group displaying the greatest amount of spirit, good taste, and sportsmanship will be announced as winners following each game, and will be able to pick up the keg the following week.

The Mavericks' next home game is Saturday against Northern Colorado at 8 p.m. in the Fieldhouse.

Mavs take dive

After having two weather-related cancellations this year, swimming Coach Paul Cerio and his team are looking forward to Friday's meet against the University of Manitoba.

The Co-ed meet will be held at 7 p.m. today in the HPER building.

Track teams run over Midland

By Henry Cordes

The UNO men's and women's track teams each registered wins over Midland College Sunday at the Boys Town Fieldhouse for their first dual victories of the year.

The men won 10 of 15 events, including eight of the 10 running events, in crushing Midland 81 1/3 - 33 2/3.

The Mavs also showed strength in the 60-meter hurdles, sweeping the top four places. Tim Freeburg won the event in 7.61 seconds. Lawrence Allen, Mark Kelley and Tom Pawol followed in succession with times of 7.72, 7.73 and 7.82, respectively.

Graylin Butler of UNO was a double winner, taking the 60-meter dash in 6.33 seconds and the 300 meters in 31.53.

Though UNO pole vaulters went unopposed in the meet, Mavs Tim Connor and Tracy Slobodnik set their sights on the Boys Town indoor record of 15 feet.

Both Connor and Slobodnik cleared that height on their first attempts, but could jump no higher. Connor eventually won the event in a jump-off.

The most heated battle of the day came in the men's high jump, in which Randy DeBuhr of Midland and Dan Bice (of UNO but competing independently) squared off.

DeBuhr and Bice both had jumps of 6-10 for the day, but DeBuhr was the winner by virtue of fewer misses, 2-1.

Other wins for the UNO men were Al McLaughlin in the 440 meters, Joe Fairbanks in the 600, Mark Franco in the 880, Mike Jones in the mile, Kelley in the long jump, and the 400 relay team of Freeburg, Kelley, Allen and Mark Viola.

Men's track coach Don Patton called the Mav effort "not bad for a first time out."

"I was pleased. I felt the kids did real well and there were some good individual performances."

UNO's Regina Dale turned in perhaps the best performance of the day in leading the Lady Mavs to a narrow 56 1/2-54 1/2 win.

Dale won the 60-meter hurdles, the 300-meter run, and the long jump. Her jump of 18-3 1/2 in the latter event was just a second off the national qualifying mark.

Other Lady Mav winners were Kristi Bundy in the 60-meter dash, and Julie Gullett in the high jump with a national qualifying height of 5-6 1/2.

"It's a win, a close one, but a win," said women's track coach Bob Condon.

"I was a little disappointed at the sluggishness we showed in some events, but overall, I'm very pleased."

YesterYear

Unbelievable as it may seem, the first national championship ever achieved by UNO was not in football. Nor basketball. Nor wrestling. Nor baseball. Would you believe it was in bowling?

In September 1962, Omaha University's four-lane bowling alley was officially opened in the Milo Bail Student Center in a ribbon-cutting ceremony. Then university president Milo Bail said that "the wonderful new addition was for the use of the entire university family."

According to Gary Anderson, now sports information director at UNO, the lanes came from a bowling alley which was located in the Astro Theater building, and had gone out of business. The cost of the lanes came to just under $62,000.

But $62,000 did not buy bliss. Within a month, complaints came about the "outrageous" price of $2.40 per hour to use the lanes.

As Sheri Hronek, a reporter for the Gateway at the time, put it, "$2.40 an hour! That's 24 cups of coffee. Or one carton of cigarettes and two cups of coffee. Or 52 hours of parking time. Wow!"

The games room manager quickly changed the bowling rate to 40 cents a line "because of a misunderstanding in the bowling price systems."

Bowling at UNO reached its peak in May 1965 when the bowling team went to Kansas City and brought home the national championship. The hero of the hour was Bob Bigley, who threw two critical strikes to help his team take the tournament.

But within nine years bowling was passe. The lanes didn't bring in enough money because no one used them.

So in 1974, when the Student Health Center sought a more active spot to occupy on campus (they had been hiding in the Administration Building), the bowling alleys were taken away and replaced by bright colored carpeting and office areas. It only cost about $50,000.

In just 12 years, a sports fad had come and gone. And no one but the construction crew was there to say goodbye. UNO's first national championship is just a memory.

Kaufman is best again; Mavs claim fifth place

Ryan Kaufman, UNO's 142-pound division wrestling champion, was named "outstanding wrestler of the tournament" for the second time in two weeks, at the 16-team Southwest Missouri State Invitational meet Saturday.

Kaufman also took "outstanding wrestler" honors in the Jan. 16 six-team dual meet at UNO, where he pinned three opponents.

UNO took fifth place Saturday. "We didn't do as well as we'd like," said Coach Mike Denny. UNO had four wrestlers at home with injuries. The team had to take along freshmen replacements.

"Ryan looked tough," said Denny. "He just goes out and does it, and gets it done."

Kaufman won his first two matches 25-3 and 24-3. His third win was a pin in 1:02, and in his fourth match he pinned national champion Ronnie James of Central Oklahoma State in 1:04.

Ted Husar, a 150-pound senior, lost only one match, to Wes Roper of the University of Missouri, 6-1. Husar finished third.

Heavyweight Mark Rigatuso also placed third, after losing one of his early matches, 4-1.

In the 158-pound division, senior Bill Wofford took fifth, losing two matches by one point each. Senior Steve Cooley took sixth place in the 190-pound division.

The final standings:

1. Southern Illinois-Edwardsville	134½ points
2. University of Missouri-Columbia	133½ points
3. Central Oklahoma State	125
4. Eastern Illinois	108
5. UNO	63½
6. Augustana	58½
7. Southwest Missouri	47½
8. Central Missouri State	38½

The Mayericks' next meet is Friday against Northwest Missouri State and Central Missouri State. The meet will start at 1:30 p.m. in the Fieldhouse.

Preview 'Troubled Waters' looks at 1960

The UNO Studio Theatre begins its spring season tomorrow night at 8 with a multimedia production entitled "Troubled Waters."

The play is a compelling and sensitive piece whose aim is to illuminate the thoughts and feelings of young people who came of age in the turbulent 1960s, according to promotional material about the play.

Director Diane Casker has compiled the entire script from the prose and poetry of such poet/philosophers as Dylan Thomas, James Joyce, Gregory Corso, Carl Shapiro, Michael Casey, and Anais Nin.

The resulting emotional range is stunning and the personal impact as varied as each person's experiences.

A gentle, if uncompromising, panorama unfolds which begins with the hopeful spirit of the Kennedy Administration and continues through the bittersweet experiences of a generation of individuals destined to deal with war, racial unrest, and sexual revolution.

Casker's decision to undertake "Troubled Waters" stems from her own experiences as a student during the '60s. She said enough time has passed for the beginning of a perspective to take shape about that troubled time.

"Most history books don't deal with that period yet," said Casker. "An awful lot of people in college now don't know much about it, beyond all the sensationalism."

Casker will receive her master's degree from UNO this May. No newcomer to the stage, she began acting classes at the age of nine in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. She acted in a number of shows there and did a variety of repertory work.

Since moving to Omaha 14 years ago, she has worked steadily in drama, as both an actress and director. She has received two Fonda/McGuire awards and two awards from the Metropolitan Actors Guild for roles in "Wait Until Dark" and "St. Joan."

Casker recently directed "Trouble in Tahiti" at the Center Stage. She has also had extensive experience in directing informational, educational, and commercial training films for other companies as well as her own, Diane Casker and Co.

Slides and music (both live and recorded) of the 1960s will be used in the presentation.

Cast members are Maurice Griffin, Connie Grant,
